All. Bets. Are. Still. Off.

Item one – the February futures long liquidation/rollover is finished.

Item two – for the most part, the Lunar New Year revelry is done, China is back in the market.

For gold, these two things are sufficient to support the resurgent buying interest we saw overnight. Whether this buying is right remains to be seen. It is all going to be down to the payrolls number tomorrow. It appears that even after the strong ADP number the expectations have not been revised higher. This will be the last Obama number. It is going to be a strong one. Unless it isn't.
